

Rajeh A. Saadeh leads a team of attorneys at The Law Office of Rajeh A. Saadeh, L.L.C., and devotes a substantial portion of his litigation practice to matrimonial and family law and handles all issues pertaining to divorce and dissolutions of civil unions and domestic partnerships, including child custody, visitation, parenting time, child support, equitable distribution of assets and debts, complex valuation of businesses and professional practices, stock options, executive benefits and compensation, alimony, palimony, arbitration, and mediation. He also handles domestic violence litigation, post-judgment modification, and enforcement, and he drafts prenuptial, mid-marriage, and divorce settlement agreements. In connection with his family law background, Rajeh serves as an appointee to the Supreme Court of New Jersey's Family Practice Committee, volunteered on the Early Settlement Panel in Somerset County, and is a trained family law mediator.

In addition to family law, Rajeh has experience litigating criminal cases, civil matters in both law and equity, including foreclosure and condemnation cases, municipal court matters involving traffic tickets, DUI/DWI charges, disorderly persons offenses, landlord-tenant matters, including evictions, violations of municipal ordinances, and appeals to higher courts.

Apart from litigation, Rajeh represents clients in commercial and residential real estate transactions, and he has experience negotiating short sales, loan modifications, and forbearances with banks and mortgage holders and servicers. Related to his real estate practice, Rajeh helps those who want to sell real estate via short sale, are at risk of foreclosure, or who cannot make their mortgage payments. Rajeh also served as the attorney for the Board of Health and a member of the Planning Board and Board of Adjustment in the Township of Springfield.

Rajeh volunteered with Wafa House, a support center dedicated primarily to educating and assisting victims of domestic violence. Rajeh is/was a member of the American Bar Association, state bar associations in New York and New Jersey, and county bar associations in Somerset, Middlesex, Hunterdon, and Union. Respecting the New Jersey State Bar Association, Rajeh is/was a Trustee, the Chair of the Young Lawyers Division, an Executive Committee member of the Solo and Small Firm Section, the Treasurer of the Minorities in the Profession Section, and a member of the Diversity, Appellate Practice, Insurance Benefits, Securities Law, CLE Advisory, and Equity Jurisprudence Committees as well as the General Council. Rajeh is also a past President of the New Jersey Muslim Lawyers Association, is/was a member of the New Jersey Commission on Professionalism in the Law, interviews applicants for undergraduate admission to the University of Pennsylvania, was an adjunct professor at Raritan Valley Community College, has spoken on or moderated numerous continuing legal education panels on family law, litigation, real estate, professional growth and development, diversity, mediation, and ethics, has published law-related articles, has been quoted in media outlets, and has been a guest speaker in higher education and the media.

Prior to private practice, Rajeh served as the Judicial Law Clerk to the Honorable Hany A. Mawla, a former Presiding Judge of the Family Part in Somerset, Hunterdon, and Warren Counties and current Judge of the Appellate Division. Rajeh graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Law School where he was elected Class Officer by his peers and received the Outstanding Pro Bono Service Award for his commitment to the Homeless Advocacy Project. At Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, where he earned a Bachelor of Arts, Rajeh was an Edward J. Bloustein Distinguished Scholar, a member of the Rutgers College Honors Program, and a frequenter on the Dean's List.

Rajeh is licensed to practice law in the States of New Jersey and New York and authorized to appear before the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey and the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.
